Dear readers and writers of poetry and lovers of culture,

As some of you already know, Green Fuse Poetic Arts, a non-profit association devoted to nourishing regional poetry and its connection to the Colorado community, organizes an annual benefit concert to support its publications, workshops, and performances. This benefit also offers us the opportunity to share poetry with our community by doubling as a poetry reading with an open mic as well as a reading by a featured poet, winner of the Green Fuse Annual Chapbook Contest.

This year the concert will be held on Sunday, April 11th at the Trinity Lutheran Church Sanctuary (301 E. Stuart St, Fort Collins). We are very pleased to announce that Kailin Yong (www.kailinyong.com) of the Boulder Acoustic Society will be our featured musician along with a quartet assembled just for this occasion. Kailin Yong is nothing if not eclectic, offering a truly international approach to the violin and to music in general. He composes and plays everything from tango to jazz, a global mix.

The evening will begin with the open mic and continue with the featured reader. Kailin Yong has accompanied poetry on many occasions and will continue that genre-mixing trend at the benefit. There will be a short intermission and then the concert will begin in earnest. The evening starts at 6:00pm and will end at 8:30/9:00pm. Tickets are $25.00 and include a copy of the winning chapbook. (Kailin Yong's CD will also be available for purchase and signing.)

A form is attached for your convenience. Please fill out and return to Green Fuse with a check, and feel free to copy this form and invite as many friends and family as possible! We are depending on our community to spread the news about this event and about Colorado poetry in general, so it can once more take its place as an integral part of our culture, warm and welcoming for poets and non-poets alike.

Sincerely,
Katherine West
